GORDON ROY PARKER,  v.  Ronald Lee et al,	Plaintiff  Defendants	:	Case No: 23-3999-GJP
---	-----------------------------	---	----------------------

SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADING (#1)

Gordon Roy Parker (“Gordon”), Plaintiff in the above-styled action, submits this supplemental pleading to the record.

BACKGROUND

On Sunday, January 21, 2024 – a date which will live...in infamy – at or around 11:15 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, Walter “Walt” Parker (Plaintiff’s brother), was bitten by a rat that was trapped inside the kitchen, an injury requiring medical attention and a future consultation with a personal-injury lawyer:

Plaintiff’s paralegal, ChatGPT, summarized the incident in an article:

Ravenous Rodent Rampage: Unwelcome Kitchen Critter Takes a Nibble!

In a shocking turn of events, an ordinary kitchen became the scene of a startling encounter between man and beast. A daring rat, in a brazen display of audacity, took a taste of human flesh, chomping down on an unsuspecting individual's finger! This household tale of terror unfolded as the scurrying scavenger made its presence known, prompting a mix of horror and surprise. Witnesses captured the aftermath of this miniature monster's assault, showcasing the evidence of the nibble. The victim, caught in the crosshairs of this culinary conquest, now sports a battle scar from the tiny terror. As the community reels from this close encounter of the rodent kind, one thing is clear: this is no ordinary pest problem, but a whiskered warrior's declaration of a nibble-war!

Plaintiff also had ChatGPT review the Building (the one owned by Defendants) from the point of view of the rodent:

Five Stars for Urban Wildlife Retreat!

As a discerning urban rodent, I've seen my share of digs, but this place is the bee's knees! The humans call it subpar, I call it home! Cracks and crevices for days, perfect for the little ones to scamper and play. The never-ending smorgasbord of gourmet refuse is to die for – quite literally! The humans seem to dislike it, but for us, it's a rustic palace. Cozy, warm, and with a delightful, ever-present aroma of eau de garbage. Truly, a rat's utopia!

Additionally, Plaintiff continues to live in an apartment with no heat, during an extremely cold spell that does not mesh well with his compromised ability to thermoregulate, particularly during the long "commute" to the bathroom.

This the 22nd day of January, 2024.
